

VISITS NEW ORLEANS

WALTER L. JORDAN RETURNS FROM INTERESTING TRIP TO IMPORTANT CITIES

Walter L. Jordan, an agent of the well-known Kiefelguhr company, which is a concern that manufactures articles for heat insulation, travels a great deal for his firm. The Kiefelguhr company is a Los Angeles corporation with offices in New York and Chicago. Mr. Jordan has just returned from a trip through the east and south. His business took him to Chicago. There he found business conditions in excellent shape. The whole place he says is humming like a gigantic beehive. The stimulation of the money that is circulating in the Middle West from the vast manufacturing undertakings that have been created by the war in Europe is manifest everywhere.

In similar manner New York is experiencing the busiest time that city has known for some time. Everybody is wide awake and hard at work. Eastern factories of every kind are running full time and many of them running night and day shifts. This activity has made itself felt in every line of human interest and everybody is sharing the prosperity.

"Perhaps," said Mr. Jordan, "I found as much interest in New Orleans as in New York. While I was there the weather was warm and the male inhabitants were going about their business in immaculate white clothing. The busy era seemed to have reached there also. The shipping in the river displayed much activity. There was much loading of machinery manufactured for the European powers. A big business also has been done in the shipment of mules to Europe. There also were daily shipments of fruit to the east. In short New Orleans has also felt the stimulus of the war.

"I was struck by the fact that the mosquito which is credited with being the disseminator of yellow fever and against which a relentless war was waged not long ago was still to be met with in considerable numbers. When I was in Havana, Cuba, in the spring, I found that city absolutely rid of the mosquito.

"From New Orleans I went to Houston, Tex., which is a nice, clean city and in excellent business shape. Then I went to Denver, and on to Salt Lake City. In Utah I was struck by the good roads that have recently been constructed. Coming on to San Francisco I found business conditions very favorable. Every manufacturing concern there is filled up with eastern orders—war orders. Otherwise the Pacific coast is dull compared with the east."

Wednesday, November 1, is to be "booster" day for The Evening News and The Tri-City Progress. Upon that day friends of these two publications will be asked to report to the office names of persons willing to become new subscribers. All persons who find themselves owing subscription money for these papers will be glad to help make the booster day a success by paying in advance. Of course there will be many persons who will prefer to pay before November 1. From time to time numerous citizens of this community have declared themselves as being ready to boost for The Evening News and it is in response to these kind requests that we have thought it expedient to fix a special day for this purpose. Remember the date, Wednesday, November 1.

PACIFIC AVENUE P.-T. A.

The Pacific Avenue Parent-Teacher association held its regular meeting at the Pacific avenue school, Thursday, October 12, in the afternoon. There was a large attendance. A pleasing program was presented as follows: Mrs. Clyde Cheney sang two songs with great taste and feeling, "Love Has Wings," by Rogers and "Spring Song" by Denza. Mrs. Hutchinson, president of the Parent-Teacher federation gave an interesting address on the "Value of Parent-Teacher Organization." The association arranged to have a tree planting crusade on November 11. T. W. Watson, city manager of Glendale has promised his assistance in this matter. Mrs. C. G. Cable, chairman of civics in the Pacific school district will superintend this crusade and will be assisted by each member of the association as a committee. Mrs. Ella W. Richardson gave a very instructive address on "Woman, Home, Child and School."

WEATHER FORECAST—Generally cloudy tonight and Sunday; westerly winds.

CITRUS PROSPECTS

F. W. KENNEY SAYS RAIN HAS WASHED ORANGES AND CLEANED TREES

"There is every prospect," said F. W. Kenney, manager of the Sparr Fruit company, "that the coming crop of oranges will be one of the best the Southland has ever produced. The crop is large in quantity and apparently excellent in quality. The recent rains did valuable service in washing down the trees and cleaning the branches and leaves and washing the fruit. This should result in a very fine crop. There is nothing equal to the natural irrigation from rain to make the trees grow. It also gives a flavor to the fruit which nothing else can impart.

"The Sparr Fruit company is cleaning up the last of the Valencia crop. There are about ten cars of Valencias to be dispatched yet and these are about ready. The prices are very satisfactory.

"Lemons are a good crop and have been a good crop all through the season. What every California lemon grower is looking for is the election of Charles E. Hughes, as president of the United States. When that has been accomplished we hope to obtain the imposition once more of the tariff of 1½ cents on foreign oranges which enabled us and no more to compete with the lemons of Sicily and Italy and still to make a profit.

"That the reduction of the tariff of foreign lemons to one-half cent every lemon grower will agree came near to extinguishing the lemon trade of California altogether. Only the war saved it. Even with the 1½ cent tariff the lemon growers of Sicily managed to land their produce in New York at 8 cents a box cheaper than we could get them there. It costs us $1.17 railroad charges alone to get our fruit to the New York market. The foreign oranges could be sold in New York for $1.50 and up and still make a profit.

"Of course the foreign orange or lemon is not equal to the California orange or lemon. There is no comparison in lemons at all. The California fruit is of a more equable and profitable size and contains more juice and more excellent juice than the Sicilian article but that makes little or no difference to the purchaser. The public demands a lemon at a cheap rate and must have it.

"A friend of mine who was recently traveling in Tennessee told me that everywhere he saw foreign lemons and that when he asked the reason he was told that they were cheap. He urged that it was only right to patronize the industries of the United States and told his hearer that California had seen lemons of a quality that far surpassed those that were then being sold in Tennessee.

"The retail dealer told my friend that he was quite aware of the superiority of the California orange but that it was not a matter of sentiment with him nor yet of patriotism. 'I'm in business,' he said, 'and I have no call to sacrifice my business for my patriotism. I am as loyal an American as anyone else; but I don't want to become a bankrupt. The people here want a cheap lemon. I can sell those foreign lemons from a dollar to a dollar and a half cheaper per box than I can sell California lemons and so I sell them and get rid of them when the California lemons would be a dead loss.'

"That is one example of what the low tariff has done to our business. Is it any wonder that we look with hope to the November election?"

A SELF HYPNOTIST

Joseph Terreira, a half-breed Portuguese, was found by the police roaming aimlessly about the streets and now and then standing in rapt communication with his own soul, to the annoyance of the citizens who bumped up against him when he took it in his head to stand in the midst of the sidewalk traffic. Terreira would answer no questions and remained in a half-dreaming condition all the time he was being examined in court. Judge Whomes sentenced him to ten days and sent him to Los Angeles. While in the jail here Terreira remained standing most of the time and appeared to be in a singular condition.

WASHINGTON LEARNS THAT CONDITIONS ON SOUTHERN BORDER ARE COMPARATIVELY PEACEABLE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.—According to reports received by the war department here today conditions along the Mexican border are very much improved. The presence of the American troops has had a most quieting effect on the natives. There is a conspicuous lack of attacks on isolated farms and raiders are no longer seen in bands scouting the district. The administration hopes soon to be able to relieve the greater part of the militiamen on the border. President Wilson today speaking to Governor Whitman of New York stated that the men would be sent home before long but that troops were needed on the border just at present.

TERRIFIC FIGHTING SHAKES WESTERN FRONT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Under a terrific hail of machine gun fire and a decimating shower of shrapnel and big shells the Germans poured wave after wave of men against the French lines near Ablaincourt. After several of their attacks had broken down a considerable body of the Brandenburgs broke through and jumped into the French trenches. They were not there many minutes. An irresistible counter attack threw them out again.

HIS SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY

Robert Taylor of Palmer avenue, Tropic, a prominent G. A. R. man and a member of the N. P. Banks post, attained his seventieth birthday Wednesday, October 11. In honor of the occasion he gave his numerous friends a reception at the G. A. R. hall. The entertainment was provided by Mr. Taylor, but the ladies of the Woman's Relief corps, surprised him by decorating the hall in a very tasteful manner, while about thirty ladies including members of the corps presented him with a very handsome birthday cake. This cake was a masterpiece of the confectioner's art. It was decorated with a delicate red, white and blue frosting and on it a fine representation of the American flag was cleverly represented in rippling lines of frosting.

This was the biggest social event of the week in Tropic. About 120 persons were present. Miss Florence Chadwick of Tropic played several piano solos. The Rev. Don S. Ford gave an address. Comrade Goss delighted the company with old time fiddle music. The Rev. C. R. Norton of Glendale in well chosen words presented Mr. Taylor with a handsome rocking chair, on behalf of the N. P. Banks post. The Woman's Relief corps presented him with a large American flag. This presentation was made by Mrs. Susie Peck, president of the corps. Mr. Taylor was deeply affected by the attentions showered on him and made a brief but touching reply to the presentations. He said this was the first birthday party he had ever had and that it was impossible to express his feelings of gratitude to the large number of his friends who had remembered him and had helped him to celebrate the occasion.

Mr. Taylor also received a great number of beautiful presents from his friends. Refreshments were served to Mr. Taylor's guests at 4:30 in the banquet hall. The ladies of the Relief corps gave their services as waitresses.

Mrs. H. M. Merrill of 116 Elrose avenue, Glendale, who had spent several months in Joplin, Mo., visiting her sister returned to her home Friday of this week. Mrs. Merrill was the former owner of the Glendale Dye Works.

PROFIT OR SERVICE?

ATTORNEY FREDERICK BAKER'S PAPER, "THE MUNICIPALITY AS A PUBLIC SERVANT"

Attorney Frederick Baker was scheduled to read the following paper before the League of California Municipalities, at Visalia, Thursday, October 11, but professional business prevented him from going to the convention. The paper was therefore sent on to Visalia and read by another party.

The Municipality as a Public Servant
My point of view is that the municipality exists to serve rather than to rule.

The municipal organization should be interpreted from this standpoint in terms of social service to the community and not merely as a legalistic or governmental institution to preserve order and collect taxes.

Let me say right here, the people of this whole State owe a debt of gratitude to the founders of this League, Mr. H. A. Mason and his able assistant, Wm. J. Locke, for building up this organization that stands for the highest ideals of municipal service.

It has been a help and an inspiration to all of us, as municipal workers, to push constructive work for the benefit of our towns, when otherwise we might have drifted along in the old routine, looking forward only to drawing our salaries. So, I am sure you will join with me in grateful recognition of these faithful workers.

Professor Reed of Berkeley says: "California cities are the freest on earth."

This means that our municipalities have the greatest opportunity to serve their communities that has ever existed. We are richly endowed by nature.

Water, electricity and gas at low rates, cheap street-making materials, cheap nursery stock for beautifying streets and parks, are available in most California towns.

Let us use these riches of nature for the common benefit of all the people.

One of the first steps to take in this direction is to stop the policy of farming out the right to exploit the people by granting franchises to private corporations or individuals.

The difference between private ownership of public utilities and public ownership is the difference between profit and service.

The private franchise holder seeks to get as much as he can from the people and give them as little as he can in the way of service, so he can increase his profit or dividends.

The municipality, operating a public utility, seeks to give as much service as possible for the lowest cost, or else to make a profit that will help to reduce taxation. In either event, the people as a whole receive the benefit from these essentially public enterprises.

Apart from the financial aspect, there are two other cogent reasons why the municipality itself should handle its public utilities.

The more the municipality has to do with affairs that directly concern the people, the greater interest the people will take in their municipal business. This tends to increase public spirit and to bring to the front those most capable of handling public business.

Instead of its being merely a matter of politics in the old sense, holding office is looked upon as an opportunity to render valuable public service and consequently an honor to be gladly undertaken. This tends to broaden and deepen municipal life in all directions and directly tends to increase efficiency.

On the other hand, it has been absolutely demonstrated in California that to allow private ownership of public utilities means to corrupt municipal life at its source, and to sow the seed of graft, bribery and corruption in all municipal affairs.

I have only to refer to the history of San Francisco during the last ten years to establish this proposition.

As said by Franklin Hieborn in his illuminating book on "The System" as Uncovered by the San Francisco Graft Prosecution.

"In the old days, an invading army conquered San Francisco and exploited it."

In Los Angeles municipal affairs there is also an unholy alliance between the selfish interests, led by the franchise owners and the owners of their securities, for the purpose of exploiting the city instead of serving it.

Using these two near at hand examples as a good illustration of the logical effect on municipal life of the privately owned public utility, we reach the first conclusion, if the

ARGENTINA'S NEW RADICAL PRESIDENT

Dispatches received yesterday in the United States told of the installation of Hipolito Irigoyen as president of Buenos Aires. It was stated that the ceremony was one of the simplest ever known in that country where the love of official ceremony is a matter of heredity. Irigoyen is an idealist. He is away in advance of his age and country. He breathes a superb indifference to official red tape and has no platform that anyone has ever heard.

These are singular conditions, but they are true of Argentina at the present time. Irigoyen was elected on the platform of fair elections. In Argentina the elections had often been conducted on the principle that prevailed in Mexico in old Diaz' time—only those were allowed to vote who were to vote for Diaz. Dr. Irigoyen made his fight on that point and the country elected him. He has a free hand and nobody knows what he may do with his opportunity.

Irigoyen, however, is trusted by the country which is looking for wonderful changes at his hand. This may or may not be a good thing for Irigoyen. Much is expected of him, but he will be left to play out the game against his opponents with a lone hand. His opponents believe that he is a most dangerous man and look forward to his reign of power with apprehension. They profess to believe that he is plotting to seize supreme power and rule as a dictator. That, however, is a mere attempt to discredit Irigoyen with the country and the world, and it may even be a foreshadowing of an attempt to assassinate him.

Irigoyen is too much in advance of his age. He is not understood by a majority of the wealthy classes who believe that he is the very worst kind of radical. Others consider him Argentina's greatest man. He is something like Abraham Lincoln in mental makeup and mental independence. A majority of the voters trust him at present; but goodness is often supine while evil is active and aggressive, so that it would not be astonishing to find that his enemies are too much for him and that they manage to oust him from his position before long.

Irigoyen is a man of wealth; he is self-educated and is cultured in the highest degree. He has an immense ranch and made money by land transactions. He has been professor of civic instruction in the Normal School for Women and while holding that position always turned over his salary for this work to the United Charities of Buenos Aires. It is said by his admirers that his mere presence is magnetic. He has twice been a leader in revolutions. He was never arrested for his participation in these revolutions because when the police would come to his house to look for him he never could be found.

That Irigoyen understands his country goes without saying, but that a large section of his country does not understand him goes without saying. From the moment of his election he has shut himself up in his house and has refused to see office seekers. His house has no telephone and he has answered no letters since his election on the principle that Napoleon had of never opening his correspondence until months after it had been received and then it would be found that most of it had answered itself. These habits have made him bitter enemies, but he has warm friends and will receive strong support if some accident does not supervene.

SUPERVISION OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

Weights and measures laws were enforced for the first time in California in the year 1915. Examination of the different weights and measures used revealed a most amazing variety of weighing and measuring apparatus of the most obsolete types. Some of them so worn out as to be absolutely worthless as just indication of what the customer might be getting in the way of weight or measure. The officers of the Department of Weights and Measures corrected and adjusted some and ordered others to be repaired; others were condemned and confiscated.

The Department of Weights and Measures in its report on this matter is apparently struggling between its sense of justice and indignation and the feeling that short weight and short measure had come to be regarded by many as a mere trade custom and that they thought there was nothing wrong in the practice. The department is now educating the merchants and commercial bodies of the state in this matter. The usefulness of the work of the department has become apparent to many merchants and commercial bodies throughout the State. Many of these bodies have frankly vouchsafed the opinion that a trade advantage gained by means of false weights and false measures is productive of evil and injury to honest trade.

It is the vast multitude of customers in general who are to benefit by this new supervision of sellers. The seller does not need protection. He is equipped to take care of himself. There are a million buyers to one thousand sellers. The department is desirous of serving the best interests of both. The seller is encouraged to give up the old trade customs by which false balances, which the Scriptures pronounce "an abomination of the Lord" have been sanctioned and to build up trade on a just and equitable basis.

In the matter of wood and coal which interests Californians at this season the department has fixed the standard cord at 128 cubic feet. All meaningless measures such as tiers and ricks have been abolished as they greatly facilitated the perpetration of fraud. All wood must now be sold by a standard cord and its regular subdivisions. The standard weight of a sack of coal has been fixed at 100 pounds. Olives must now be sold by the net weight and the brine must not be sold along with them.

It is interesting to learn that in California a thousand shingles only amounted to 800. This is what has been known as "the California count", four bundles to a thousand, each bundle containing 200 shingles. Shingles today must be sold by the net count and five bundles of shingles of 200 each are sold as 1000. The California count formerly meant merely "short count."

Milk bottles that profess to hold a pint or quart and do not, have been abolished and milk today must be sold only in the regular

Now a proper measuring yard, preferably of steel, has been insisted on. The supervision runs into every department of sale and retail. ## AT GLENDALE HIGH

COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT ADOPTED BY THE STUDENT BODY

The weekly assembly of all the students held yesterday in the auditorium was featured by the most orderly and business-like student body meeting held in many days. As a result of this meeting, Glendale High school's student body is now under a commission form of government.

Herbert Scheuner, who presided over the meeting, asked Mr. Howe to explain the proposed amendment to the constitution and the reasons for its adoption, which he did in a very clear manner. Berna Martin suggested that the student body would have no control over its affairs whatever if the new resolution carried. Samuel Durand introduced an amendment which provided for a referendum by petition. This amendment was carried and the main amendment, as amended, was unanimously adopted.

The chairman then called for the report of the committee which was to have made nominations for the vacant student body officers. The committee had not met, so the chairman asked it to adjourn and bring back a report as soon as possible. Ed Seay head of the committee soon announced the nominees: For president, Herbert Scheuner, Howard McGillis and Olin Wilson; for secretary, Margaret Gregg and Leon Shattuck.

A motion prevailed that a yell leader also be elected. The nominating committee submitted the names of Fred Dodge, Olin Wilson and Milton Brown.

Student body affairs were not the only affairs to come before the students at yesterday's meeting. National politics, after a speech by Mr. Howe, assumed a most important part in school affairs.

Glendale High now has three enthusiastic political clubs, each with a pick on room 9. For instance, there is the "Wilson for President" club, and there is the "Hughes for President" club, and there is the "Benson for President" club. They all met at noon. Ed Seay was made president of the Democrats, which are credited with having the largest turn out at their meeting. The biggest member of the Hughes club is Berna Martin. The Socialist organization consists of Chauncey Kolts, Allen Houdyshel and the prominent labor leader, Marion Lehman. These clubs promise to furnish the school with many stirring political speeches before the national election. Already committees are at work, and it is hopeful in addition to local speakers to obtain men of affairs to give Glendale their views on the presidential situation and the national issues of the day.

Mr. Wight has a new F. & C. The Seniors met Friday to have their fingers measured for rings. Two fellows of the class who propose to let their student body dues come out of the class treasury were also discussed in non-complimentary terms. The puzzle is not yet quite solved.

The Hallowe'en hop of the Seniors was announced in assembly today. This will be the first real dance of the year and as Ed says, it will be some dance.

CONGREGATIONAL PENNY SOCIAL

As a means of raising church funds with a minimum of expense and trouble the Penny social inaugurated in Glendale by the First Congregational church is a great success. The affair took place Friday evening in the church parlors and was largely attended. Every article in the booths was disposed of at the sum of one penny. Many of the articles were unique and all found a ready sale. The sum realized was a little more than $40. The ladies who assisted Mrs. Willisford in the work of the evening were:

Candy booth, Lois Schuyler, Margaret Frazee and Millicent Alvord. Jitney annex, Beatrice Smith, Emma Patterson and Vera Cox. Periodicals and grab bag, Ruth Manger. Novelties, Lillian McGibbons, Marcella Miller and Audrey Hall. Flowers, Olive Hudson. Fortune telling, Elizabeth Bullard and Edith Schuyler. Picture show, A. R. Chappell. Lunch table, Marguerite Hall. Ice cream, Mrs. W. C. Alvord. Story telling, Miss Chase of the Reference department of the Los Angeles public library.

Punch table, Margaret Pardon and Miss Helen Jenkins.

The Gleaner class, division 2, gave a very amusing and cleverly acted sketch entitled "The Tragedy of the Princess Pink Eye." Those who took part in this were: Millicent Alvord, King Sharp Tooth; Elizabeth Speer, Queen Sunny Face; Edith Schuyler, Prince Hawkeye; Lois Schuyler, Princess Pink Eye; Gladys Peckham, King's Throne; Olive Hudson, Rug Before the Throne; Fay Butler and Grace Manger; Margaret Frazee and Eva Hudson, Footlights; Gladys Peckham, Rising Moon; Miss Smith, Cock Crowing.

Excellent music was discoursed throughout the evening by the String quartet consisting of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, Mrs. J. P. Smith and Mr. Manger.

Learning is frequently a drug on the market, while doing always finds ready buyers.

PROFIT OR SERVICE?

municipality is really to serve the community instead of merely ruling it.

That is, that the municipality itself should, as rapidly as possible, acquire all its public utilities and operate them for the benefit of the whole community, instead of allowing them to remain in private hands where they menace the public welfare and exploit the people.

Our California cities are making rapid progress in the direction of the public ownership of public utilities. We should recognize the fact that this question involves not only economic aspects, but that it has a moral and social phase as well.

To prove that I am not over stating the case but that I am in line with the best municipal authorities, I wish to read you a few statements.

I wish to call attention to the splendid work called "Municipal Franchises" by the well-known authority, Delos F. Wilcox, who now holds an important position in the government at New York City. Its sub-title is "A Description of the Terms and Conditions Upon Which Private Corporations Enjoy Special Privileges in the Streets of American Cities," and may be consulted with great advantage to anyone who is drafting or investigating a franchise for any public utility. It is essentially a law book, yet in Chapter 5 the whole sordid story of the looting of American cities by public service corporations is summarized. I quote from that chapter some of its main points, as follows:

"'Graft is treason,' said Joseph W. Folk, after prosecuting the St. Louis boodle cases. He had discovered that public service corporations seeking franchises in a great city and aldermen having power to grant them often yield to the temptation to conspire together as public enemies for private profit. It is of the very essence of treason to permit sordid private interests to outweigh a citizen's loyalty to the general welfare of the country. * * * A tragic story might be written of the temptations of public service corporations. The temptations of Adam and Eve were nothing as compared with these. Organized for profit and thereby adopting the ruling passion of a sordid age as the sole guiding motive of their activities, these corporations have found themselves relieved of the restraints of conscience and personal feeling which often hold in check the greed of individual men. Left in this defenceless condition, these corporations have been led to view all their relations from the standpoint of those who, craving money alone, are keenly alive to the power which money has to secure objects not to be had through persuasion and appeal to lofty motives. Under these conditions, it is hardly surprising that public utility corporations have come to be regarded as one of the main instruments of municipal corruption and inefficiency."

He then quotes with approval from a report of Mr. Walter L. Fisher of Chicago, entitled "The American Municipality," as follows:

"The attempt to control and regulate street railways, gas, electric light and telephone companies has on the whole, been unsuccessful, because of the powerful special interests which have either controlled or strongly influenced the governing party in power in the community. The chief sources of corruption in American cities are necessarily public contracts and the granting of special privileges or exemptions. As a matter of fact the latter has been the most important contributory cause. There have been many and great abuses in connection with public contracts, but the most serious scandals have almost always been connected with, or centered around special privileges and chiefly public utilities. * * * A contract or the securing of a contract on unfair terms invites occasional corruption; a franchise usually involves the continuous maintenance of a 'sphere of influence' in the city government. * * * Since it is practically impossible to isolate the different departments of city government, the contamination of one has tended to affect all the others. In any study, therefore, of the relations between the American city and the public utility corporations, it must be borne in mind that one of the reasons for the weakness of American city governments has been the very action of these very special privilege interests themselves."

He then points out how these public utility corporations in carrying out their policy of working for profit only, are the natural allies of the saloon and vice interests of the city. Again he says:

"The extent to which public service corporations have debauched officials and deadened the public conscience by means of direct bribery will never be known. This is a secret offence and both parties to it are guilty of a crime. They keep still about it except under extraordinary circumstances. But the actual confessions and convictions of bribers in New York, St. Louis, San Francisco, Grand Rapids and other places, and the knowledge that similar conditions have apparently prevailed at one time or another in practically all large cities, have satisfied the public that direct bribery in connection with franchise-grants has been in many localities at many times an established policy of public service corporations. * * * There are an indefinite number of ways in which a powerful public service corporation can reach public officials with rewards or punishments for their official acts. Through the control of a bank, a company may extend a loan to a needy alderman who is unfriendly. There is nothing in the conditions of public life today so terrible as this power of corporations existing by favor of the city to debauch the character of the public servants by subtle, multifarious and almost irresistible pressure. * * * Both the debauchery of the official service and the wrecking of the utilities are disasters of great magnitude from this standpoint of the public welfare."

He further points out how street railway companies have reduced the business of jury fixing to a system and that influencing the judiciary is one of the ways they have also entrenched themselves. In this connection, on page 114, he says:

"An offensive and defensive alliance between the companies and such political forces as the Reuf organization in San Francisco, Tammany Hall in New York City, and the dominating machines in Denver, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and other cities, great and small, enables the companies to name the local judges in advance, and through the senatorial system of appointments to dictate on many occasions who shall be judges in the lower federal courts."

In the book of Franklin Hichborn above referred to, "The System," or "The San Francisco Graft Prosecution," is an illuminating chapter entitled "Dismissal of the Graft Cases," showing how the political influence of public utility corporations works out in actual practice.

Another well-known writer on this subject, Frederic C. Howe, in his book "The Modern City and Its Problems," says:

"Fortified by constitutions and laws and judicial decisions, the public service corporations have succeeded in establishing an almost complete monopoly, which monopoly depends for its continuance upon the control of the politics of the city and the state as well as the courts which interpret these laws. * * * The value of public service franchises is colossal. In most cities of over 10,000 people, it exceeds the city's debt. Mr. John Moody, the editor of Moody's Manual, has stated that the value of the franchises of the public service corporations in New York exceeds $750,000,000. In Toledo, according to Mayor Brand Whitlock, the street railway company had about $5,000,000 of actual investment, while it had a capitalization in stocks and bonds of nearly $30,000,000, and the difference of $25,000,000 was the community value which the magnates had been exploiting for their own benefits. Some years ago the physical property of the seven Chicago traction companies was appraised at $44,000,000, while the securities issued upon the property was $120,000,000. Two-thirds of the securities were based upon the grant from the city. * * * In order to pay interest on these inflated securities, the corporations must preserve a monopoly of the service. And this is only possible through politics. Councilmen and city officials are bribed; sometimes openly, more often they are given contracts or some indirect payment. The corporations identify themselves with the party organization. They contribute to campaign funds. In order to secure votes at election, they enter into partnership with the saloon and vice as has been shown by the disclosures in a score of cities. They control or influence the press, sometimes through ownership, more often through advertisers, for the securities of these corporations are owned by the influential men in the community. They are also identified with the banks, and through the banks with the entire business community. For the banks control credit and through credit they influence the business men and advertising. When the election of an honest and independent administration may impair the value of these privileges, the banking professional and business interests are united with the public service corporations in an effort to protect the grants. On the one side is the wealth and talent of the city, interested in the maintenance of improper privileges. On the other hand is unorganized democracy, badly equipped with political machinery for a contest and limited in a score of ways by the state, by the constitution, and the courts, in its efforts to secure redress. In most of our cities the public service corporation is the 'invisible government' behind the boss and the political party."

GLENDALE POULTRYMEN RAISE PRIZE WINNERS

At the annual county fair now being held at Riverside the White Plymouth Rock breeders of Glendale have made a clean sweep of all the prizes. J. M. Wilson of 1320 Chestnut street showed three pullets and won first and fourth prize on two of them. A. P. McDonnell of 1427 West Seventh street showed two pullets and won second prize on one of them. Mrs. H. W. Wood of 1641 West Seventh showed one cockerel and two pullets, winning first on cockerel, third and fifth on pullets, winning on every bird shown. The fair at Riverside is a good one and all classes of livestock are well represented with large entries.

In the poultry division there were 968 entries of which about 850 were chickens. In the White Plymouth Rocks there was strong competition among a large class and for the Glendale exhibitors to carry away all the ribbons shows they have the quality in their birds.

The topic of "Christian Healing" which Dr. Willisford is considering at the Sunday evening service attracted a large and interested audience last Sunday evening. The enormous social and economic cost of sickness was presented. While the average length of human life is much longer than formerly yet diseases common to middle life have increased over forty-one per cent. Much has been done to lower the rate of mortality among infants but many a man is not living out half his days.

The reality of disease cannot be denied, but right living and right thinking will not only cure but prevent sickness. God wants men to be well and strong.

QUALITY

That is the Real Secret of the 3400 r.p.m. Chalmers Popularity

Whenever you see the Chalmers trade mark you always see the phrase "Quality First." Whenever you think Chalmers you think "Quality." And if you have been reading my ads or have been in my salesroom, you are impressed with the fact that the 3400 r. p. m. is a Chalmers car of UNUSUAL quality.

I've often said that it is, in my opinion, the greatest car the Chalmers company has built. And I have an excellent reason for saying this. It is a step ahead of any preceding Chalmers because it performs a shade better.

The quality of the new Chalmers is the kind of quality that tells on the road and tells wonderfully.

Now it is just this exceptional quality, just this shade of improvement that has brought Chalmers sales and production ahead in leaps these 12 months past.

I don't think the men in charge of affairs at the Chalmers factory realized what they had in the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers. At any rate they underestimated the demand. They built more than they had ever produced in any previous season, 'tis true, but still not enough.

The first making order was snapped up quickly. Then came a second lot. These went just as fast.

Now the factory is building the third lot and I understand that Chalmers has no intention of stopping even there. Quality it was that caused this unprecedented demand. Chalmers certainly have the right idea in building cars. "Quality First."
